meeting in New York, it is considered unlikely that Mr. Bryan will assume that he had been invited to Bermuda.

The frequently repeated assertion that Wilson expected to confer with Mr. Bryan in Bermuda is undoubtedly the result of a misunderstanding. Before the President-elect decided to spend his vacation in Bermuda he had considered isiting his friend Col. E. M. House of forming him that he was going to

Mr. Bryan follow him.

As to the probability of Mr. Bryan's becoming the real leader of the Democratic party it may be pointed out that Gov. Wilson stands behind no man in the desire for party unity and also that he He'd Bar Stock Exchanges Promosperation as to have missed the point that a great many Democrats are not friendly to Mr. Bryna. It may be taken for granted that Mr. Bryan will be consulted, but he will not be the only person consulted and his counsel may or may not be followed. Those who know Gov. Wilson and take with him every day have an idea that he is going to be the next President of the United States.

So far only one person who may be failed by the second of the united states.

Washington, Dec. 5—Representative on Banking and Currency, favors denying the use of the mail to stock exchanges and clearing houses if they fail to observe certain rules and regulations that he believes should be made law.

It is Mr. Pujo's opinion that unless the Wilson and task with him every day have an idea that he is going to be the rest President of the United States.

So far only one person who may be considered a politician has appeared along the glistening thoroughfares of these islands, and he came by mistake. Pepesentarive Donohue of Philadelphia came in on the Bermudian and didn't know until the morning he sailed that the President-elect was to be his fellow President-elect was to be his fellow President-elect was to be his fellow the sound of the sate of the mails. He strongly intimated to-day that the money trust committee in its report to the House would recommend the enactment of such a law. Gov. Wilson expressed his gratitude for the considerate thrude taken by the Congressman after elearned that a vacation was being lioved over at Salt Kettle.

The Governor continues his drives to melesting places, and makes them outly interesting by his running companies upon whatever presents itself doubly interesting by his running comments upon whatever presents itself to his keen evers. When he was asked if he liked sailing he replied that he liked sailing as sailing, but didn't care for sailing as a function. Therefore his rext sail will be with the unfunctional correspondents, whose dingy pokes for thiboom over the landing at Glen to we every morning. He reads a bit when his correspondence permits, and dist now is going through the three volumes which Gideon Welles, who was a member of Lincoln's Cabinet, devotes to himself. When he was asked if he ras keeping a memoir himself the Governor replied:

Several members of the board of governors of the Stock Exchange, including J. B. Mabon, president of the exchange, have been subpernaed to appear before the Pujo money trust investigating committee when it meets next week in Washington. George W. Ely, secretary of the exchange, has also been subpernaed. Something of the line of investigation that the hearings will take at Washington is suggested in the subpecna summoning Perley Morse as a witness. From Sir George Bullock, the Governor-General, down to the blackest boatman that tips his hat and offers to break his back for four cents everybody in Bermuda is trying to make the stay of Gov. Wilson and bis family pleasant. Curiosity to see them is tempered with a polite respect. There are no pilgrimages to Glen Cove, no gaping crowds along the highways, and that is supremely to the satisfaction of each member of the family.

the highways, and that is supremely to the satisfaction of each member of the family.

This consideration for Gov. Wilson is not paralleled by people in the United States. He is flooded with mail every time a boat arrives, and confesses to being absolutely bored by some of the siggestions that are put before him. Mrs. Wilson is overwhelmed by requests for handle-rchiefs to be sold at auction at church fairs and various other contertainments where useful articles of household furniture and personal decoration are advertised. She takes these requests good naturedly and sends the handkerchiefs.

the sounds of music floated across to the party and the Americans caught the lift of favorite melody or swing of ragtime as the band of the Second Battalion, Queen's Regiment, struck into its happily selected programme.

Gov. Wilson likes Sir George Bullock and in that agrees with all Bermudians. He came here in June as the successor of Sir Walter Kitchener, a brother of Lord Kitchener, who died in March last. He brought with him the gray hair and mellow experience of a man more than 60 years old, but in his eyethere still gleams something of the strange light that is born of great dangers and spirit undaunted.
